The erstwhile North Eastern Frontier Agency (NEFA), became union Territory of Arunachal Pradesh on 20-01-1972 under the provisions of North Eastern Areas (Reorganisation) Act 1971 (81 of 1971). It attained statehood on 20th February, 1987.

Arunachal Pradesh is situated in North Eastern Part of India stretching between longitude 91°30'E to 97°30'E and Latitude 26°30'N and 29°31'N. It spreads over an area of 83,743 Sq. Km. touching the international boundaries with Bhutan (160 Km) in the west, China (1080 Km) in the North, Myanmar (440 Km) in the South East and in the south it is linked with the state of Assam. At present it has 18 districts with population of 13, 83,727 of which 7, 13,902 males and 6, 69, 815 female and a literacy rate of 65.58% as per 2011 Population Census.

There are over 20 major tribes and a large number of sub-tribes inhabiting the State. Though, most communities are ethnically similar, having descended from an originally common stock. But their geographical isolation from each other has brought amongst tribes certain distinctive characteristics in language, dress and customs. Nature has also provided the people with a deep sense of beauty which finds delightful expression in their songs, dances, crafts and festivals.

The climate of Arunachal Pradesh varies from hot and humid to heavy rainfall in the Shivalik range. It became progressively cold as one moves northward higher altitudes. Trees of great size, plentiful climbers and abundance of cane and bamboo make Arunachal evergreen. The richness of flora and fauna that occur in these forests presents a panorama of biological diversity with over 5000 plant species, about 85 terrestrial mammals, over 500 birds and a large number of butterflies, insects and reptiles. Arunachal Pradesh also is considered to be a treasure home to orchids, known for their exquisitely beautiful blooms, with more than six hundred species occurring in varying elevations and climatic conditions throughout the state.

The Government of Arunachal Pradesh has carried out various developmental activities in the recent past. This publication presents updated socio-economic data and achievements of various departments under the government of Arunachal Pradesh during 2017-2018.
